Letter from the Music Director

Welcome to the 2022-2023 Adrian Symphony Orchestra season! We're calling this "The Year of the Concertmaster" as we are excited to announce the appointment of violinist Michael Romans in that role for us. The Concertmaster is such an important and often misunderstood role in the orchestra. So, we are shining the spotlight not only on our new Concertmaster, but also on the great Concertmasters serving the top-tier, major orchestras across the country.

Michael Romans, violin
ASO Concertmaster

Each classical concert this season will not only feature some of the great pillars of orchestral music, but also dazzling violin playing from our guests who hail from the LA Philharmonic, the Philadelphia Orchestra, and the Detroit Symphony. And in March, we have Adrian's hometown superstar, Leah Crocetto, back for a recital of her unique blend of accomplished artistry.

You won't want to miss any of our pops concerts as we welcome the return of in-demand, audience favorites. The festive holiday program will be a fast-paced whirlwind of your favorite music featuring local talent. Our February film concert will take us from Jurassic Park and Back to the Future to the Pirates of the Caribbean and more. And the June swing concert just might literally knock your socks off.

Symphonic music is alive and well in Lenawee County. So gather your friends and experience the goosebump-inducing Adrian Symphony Orchestra.

BEACH Bal Masque
BRUCH Violin Concerto
RIMSKY-KORSAKOV Scheherazade

Help us kick off our season of the concertmaster with two debuts. First, Detroit Symphony Orchestra's associate concertmaster Kim Kaloyanides Kennedy joins us for a short and delightful concerto. And our new concertmaster, Michael Romans, takes on the challenging solo lines written for the role of Scheherazade, the original desperate housewife, who conjured evocative stories for the Sultan.
